In the video, Vinay Jha, an environmental activist talks about India's environmental issues and crises. How are some of the major common, numerous environmental issues are unfamiliar to the citizens of the nation and how are people protesting these issues.

He talks about some of the major environmental concerns of India such as air pollution, groundwater depletion, deforestation which are visible to us, and still being neglected. The "cost" of urban growth is evident in floods that occur in several parts of India. Unbalanced development has made cities more vulnerable to environmental shocks, and cities will run out of natural resources in the upcoming years.
